The Game Has Something Special

Popmundo has built something rare:

- A deeply loyal, long-term player community
- Rich simulation of music stardom
- Multi-character, multi-city gameplay that rewards dedication
- A retro feel that sets it apart from modern games

This foundation is worth protecting and growing.

The goal isn't to replace the web experience — only to make daily gameplay easier on mobile.

Growing the Game — Without Changing It

Attract New Players

- App stores = free discovery by new audiences
- Push notifications act as gentle onboarding hooks
- Mobile-first generation expects an app
- Easier entry = lower barrier to starting your first character

Keep Loyal Players Loyal

- The retro web experience stays untouched
- App is additive — not a replacement
- Veterans feel seen: power features built for them
- Community notifications keep engagement high

Key Features — Built Around Player Pain Points

🔔 Smart Notifications

Health/mood alerts so you never miss a concert or invitation

🔍 Better Interact & Call

Faster player interaction

🗺️ One-Tap Tour Management

Schedule your entire world tour in seconds. Transport + shows in one view.

💬 Richer Messaging

Share photos, audio clips, competition links, song references — the full context, not just text.

Every feature solves a real frustration that players already have today.

We Don't Break What Works

"The app feels like Popmundo — because it is."

Same Visual Language

Gray sections, teal links, the popmundo header. Loyal players feel at home immediately.

Web Stays as-is

Nothing on the website changes. Desktop players keep their full experience.

How I'm Approaching This

🛠️ AI-Assisted Prototyping

I'm using AI-assisted development to prototype what a mobile experience for the platform could look like.

No agency, no team. Just hands-on iteration to make the idea tangible.

🧪 Happy to Help with Beta Testing

If a mobile version ever happens, I'd love to help test it.

Years of daily gameplay means I know what matters to players and where friction usually appears.

No commitment expected. This demo is a conversation starter — nothing more.

Thank you for reading.
